A UNIQUE CRITICISM.

How Robert Elmsere was Viewed by Her.

Young Woman in Plush Sack—What's that? "Robert Elmsere?" How far 've you got?

Young Woman in Turban Hat—Finished it last night.

Plush Sack—Did you? Now tell me, how did you like it?

Turban Hat—Lovely.

Plush Sack—What is it all about? I am dying to know.

Turban Hat—Oh, it's a love story—about a minister, you know.

Plush Sack—Is it? Awfully nice, I suppose.

Turban Hat—Yes. Then there's another couple that are in love—at any rate he is, but he's an odd stick, and she don't love him after all, but marries another fellow. I was awfully glad that she took him and not the other one.

Plush Sack—But what is there in the book that all the folks are talking about?

Turban Hat—I don't know. I didn't see anything peculiar in it—just like all love stories, as far as I could see—little different, of course, but not so very different either.

Plush Sack—But the ministers are all preaching sermons about it.

Turban Hat—I know it, but I can't see why.

Plush Sack—Something about religion I guess.

Turban Hat—Perhaps so. There's lots of religious stuff in it; but, of course, I couldn't waste my time reading that.
All I cared to know was how it came out.

Plush Sack—Mr. Milding told my father it was a very dangerous book.
He said it was full of matter that tended to corrupt the young and inexperienced.

Turban Hat—Funny; but I didn't see anything out of the way.

Plush Sack—Do you know, I'm just dying to read it! But then I haven't got any time. It makes me so sleepy to read, too. Wonder who this Mr.
Gladstone is that's been picking it to pieces?

Turban Hat—I don't know, I'm sure.
Isn't that a pretty bonnet over there on the other side?

Plush Sack—Do you think so?

Turban Hat—Yes, don't you?

Plush Sack—Kinder. Did you see that fellow that just went through the car?

Turban Hat—I didn't notice him particularly—why?

Plush Sack—O, nothing.

Turban Hat—You know him?

Plush Sack—Not much; seen him once or twice. He told my brother Fred that "Robert Elmsere" was one of the most notable books of the nineteenth century. (That's just what he said. I remember it because I've heard Fred say it over half a dozen times since.) It was one of the most notable books of the nineteenth century, he said, and one which would set the world to thinking.

Turban Hat—Men are funny things.

Plush Sack—I know it. Do you get out here? Well, good-bye.

BASEBALL A FAILURE.

Spaulding and His Men Turn Their Backs on the Australians.

Late advices to San Francisco papers, bring the news that the good fortune which attended Spaulding's baseball team in their American tour forsook the combination as soon as their feet touched Australian soil. Between Chicago and San Francisco the cities visited yielded a rich return, and more money had been made before embarkation for the Antipodes than would be required to cover all expenses, and consequently the managers were happy.
Now all is changed and their lucky star appears to have set, to their infinite disgust.

The first game played at Melbourne was on the grounds of the Cricket Association, within ten minutes' walking distance of the business centre of the city and five from the grounds where the exhibition is attracting a multitude of sightseers. Over 5000 people witnessed for the first time the national game of America, but somehow it did not appeal to the popular fancy, and the next day the crowd was reduced to 400, the third and last day's play only attracting 200.

The London Arry, being well represented, metaphorically turned up his nose at the game, which he pronounced to be "a blooming game of rounders, you know." The parrot-cry was taken up by his Australian brethren, and echoed by the press, who failed to understand however the game had won such repute for scientific skill.

As a consequence of the unfavorable opinion formed the returns have been very insignificant, and a spirit of discontent broods over the team. With feelings of anxious expectations Sydney was visited, and then Newcastle, Bellarat, Geelong, Auckland, Dunedin, Christchurch and Wellington, but at each town the same story was told over and over again.

"No, sirree," was a very general expression of opinion, "you don't catch me spending my money to see a game that I can see being played by the boys and girls every day in the week." Curiously attracted a crowd the first day in each town, but on the following days the attendance languished, and finally dropped to nothing.

The combination having shaken the antipodean dust from their feet, are now on their way to India, but in all probability the British residents in Calcutta and Bombay will follow the lead of the Australians, and see in baseball the old game of rounders under a new name.

The news brought by last steamer reports the playing by the combined teams to have been excellent, but the stolid indifference of the Britishers was not to be removed.

Despite the fact that playing was being made a losing business, the boys were taking the matter philosophically and enjoying the trip amazingly.

A Scrap of Paper Saves Her Life.
It was just an ordinary scrap of wrapping paper but it saved her life. She was in the last stages of consumption, told by physicians that she was inenurable and could live only a short time; she weighed less than seventy pounds.
On a piece of wrapping paper she read of Dr. King's New Discovery and got a sample bottle; it helped her, she bought a large bottle, it helped her more, bought another and grew better, fast, continued its use and is now strong healthy, rosy, plump, weighing 140 pounds. For fuller particulars send stamp to W. H. Coffe, Druggist, Fort Smith, Trail Bottles of this wonderful Discovery Free at A. C. Smith &

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, October 30, 1888.
Henry Fisher, Seventh South, between Ninth and Tenth Streets, says Kerr's Catarrh Cure cured me of catarrh of the head, throat, stomach and bowels, when all physicians and patent medicines failed to give me any relief. His Debility and Asthma Cure cured me of ulcerated sore throat; one of my children of diphtheria and one of measles and my wife of a hard obstinate cough.
All parties afflicted with the above complaints calling at my office will be guaranteed a cure or no charge. I make all my medicines of herbs, roots, barks, flowers, gums, leaves and balsams.
